DANA TELLS PLANS TO BRING UP BABY

Edmund Trowbridge Dana, propped up in his sick bed at the home of his father at Manchester, today told his plans for the future of his baby son, Shaw Dana.

He referred to the child as "Baby Bunting." Jessie Holliday Dana, the child's mother, committed suicide at Nantucket but week and was buried in a lonely grave on the island. Mr. Dana is ill from the shock.

Here is his story of the plans he and his wife formed for the baby's future, who was named after Bernard Shaw, whose writings were greatly admired by the late Mrs. Dana.

By EDMUND T. DANA.

At present Shaw Dana is to stay with my brother and his wife in White Plains, N. Y. They have three children now, so that my sister-in-law has had considerable experience. How long they will keep him we have not yet talked over.

Shaw is eleven months old. Mrs. Dana last saw him about the 20th of May in White Plains. Her health was not good at the time. She left the boy with my brother because she decided she was not strong enough to take care of him.

She was enormously fond of her son. It was like cutting off her arm to be separated from him. While the boy was at White Plains my wife went to several sanitariums.

She called him "Baby Bunting," or "Jack Bunting" most of the time. She had no new forms of caressing. I expect she kissed him less than most mothers do, as she cared more for his health than her pleasure. Most mothers think they are very loving to the baby when they do things that give them enjoyment, but may not be good for the baby.

Mrs. Dana's idea was that kissing a delicate thing like a child might give him some germs and make him ill. She would kiss him on the forehead, but I don't recall that she ever kissed him on the lips, except very rarely.

PLANS TO DEVELOP BABY.

The main philosophy of our ideas for bringing up the child will be kept, but the details will probably differ.

Whereas the idea of most people was to force the child into a ready-made mould, our idea was to encourage Shaw to develop his own especial talents. We did not believe that a child is born in sin and needs to have good qualities forced into it from without, but that the qualities of a child should be naturally developed from within.

I hoped Shaw would have a tendency toward philosophy. Mrs. Dana hoped he would become big —a big artist, scientist or big revolutionist. She hoped he would lead the race a nto a further level than it has attained.

Most people seem to think the world is finished, but we thought it had not attained its perfect level. People admire the revolutionist who made the changes in the past, but unfortunately decrate the man who propose them for the future.

JAIL TERM ACCEPTED BY SIEGEL

By International News Service.

GENESSO, N. Y., June 21.—Henry Siegel, former merchant prince of New York, who was convicted of accepting deposits for the private bank he operated in connection with his stores, when it was insolvent, gave himself up to the court here today to serve the ten months sentence imposed upon him last November.

After his conviction and sentence, Siegel was given six months liberty, under a stay, to earn money to pay back as much of the $2,200,000 he owed the 15,000 depositors as he could. The offer of $150,000 on account made by Siegel recently was not presented to the court for its consideration.

The decision on Siegel's part to accept and serve his sentence was due to a determination of a minority of depositors to force more money out of him under penalty of further prosecution.

A SKYROCKET CAREER.

Henry Siegel has had a skyrocket career. The story of his life is one of the oddities of American business. It dates back almost to the Civil War.

In 1867, Henry Siegel went out to hunt a job. He applied at several places, and finally found work in a clothing store.

He was paid $3.50 a week.

At the height of his career, forty years later, his salary was $4,000 a month—about $1,000 a week—about 300 times as much as his first weekly pay envelope contained.

For twenty years following 1867, the story of Siegel's life is one of slow, steady progress; a little earned, some of it saved, and a keen eye out for opportunity.

In 1887, Siegel decided that he knew enough about business to branch out for himself. He established a retail dry goods store in Chicago.

The first years were years of struggle; but success came. In ten years Henry Siegel was a big figure in Chicago's commercial life. In fifteen years he "branched out" by buying a controlling interest in the Simpson-Crawford Company in New York city.

This store had a capital of $1,000,000.

This was in 1902. Siegel has testified that at that time he was worth $4,500,000. That was the high-water mark of his prosperity, for although he may have appeared more prosperous after that time, his fortune was insecure.

FROM CHICAGO TO NEW YORK.

The man who had been a giant of merchandising in Chicago, became involved in difficulties when his business expanded.

In 1902 he opened the so-called "Fourteenth Street Store" in New York. It seemed prosperous.

The following year he established the private bank of Henry Siegel & Co.

In 1905 he founded the Boston store of the Henry Siegel Company, and later a bank was established in Boston.

His employees, his customers and

Find Clew in "Angel of Prison" Murder

JOLIET, Ill., June 21.—A blood-stained collar, found today in the closet across from the room in the Joliet penitentiary where Mrs. Odette Allen, wife of Warden M. Allen, was slain and her body partly burned, furnished the prison authorities with their first real clew to the mystery surrounding the brutal slaying of the "Angel of the Prison."

The collar, according to the authorities, bore the initials of "Chicken Joe" Campbell, a negro convict, one of the chief suspects held for the crime. He admitted the collar was his and stammered the explanation that it had become stained when he cut his chin while shaving.

Mrs. Ella D. Nordstrom, who since Wednesday has been in Judge Watt's session of the divorce court seeking a decree against Walter A. INCREASED PAY GIVEN CAR MEN

The Bay State Railway employes win an increase in wages.

This was the inside information which leaked out today while the arbitrators, representatives of the company and of the men were putting the finishing touches to the award of the arbitrators.

The men asked for an increase to thirty cents an hour for motormen and conductors during the first year and 35 cents an hour after the second year, which is an increase from their present wages of 24 and 28 cents an hour. They are awarded 30 and 32 cents an hour.

In many of the questions in dispute the men are ruled against. In others they win. The award must now be accepted by the company and by the men to become effective.

Hearings were held for months on the questions in dispute. District Attorney Pelletier was the arbitrator, assisted by James H. Vahey, representing the men, and former Attorney-General Swift for the company.

DEEPLY GRATEFUL FRANK DECLARES

"I am grateful beyond words to the Governor for the way he has disposed of the case. I felt confident all the while that it would turn out as it has. Somehow I just felt confident that I would not hang. Of course, I am unsettled, as you see, from the tremendous nerve racking experience through which I have been drawn, especially during the last trying hours of this ordeal.

"No person can know what I have gone through. I am not composed enough at this time to give an intelligent conversation. Just say that I feel more than I can express in words, and am happy that my life is saved. Time will prove, as I have often told you, the fact of my absolute innocence of the crime with which I am charged.

"I felt in my heart all the time a secret assurance that I should not hang."—Statement by Leo M. Frank after arrival at Georgia State Prison farm today.

POPE DECLARES THE VATICAN IS NEUTRAL

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, June 21.—A remarkable interview with Pope Benedict XV., in which the Pontiff is quoted as saying that the Vatican will maintain the strictest neutrality, is published today by the LaFarris Libre.

According to this newspaper the Pope refused to judge the atrocities in Belgium, saying:

"They were committed, if at all, under the reign of my predecessor, Pope Pius XII.

"When asked for an expression on the destruction of children, the Pope replied:

"The Germans say their troops were alone there to snipers. They also declared that the French had an observation post on the Rheims Cathedral. The Vatican isn't a court of justice. It isn't for me to judge. Our only judge is in Heaven.

Asked for an opinion about the destruction of the Lusitania by a German submarine, the Pope is quoted as replying:

"I've never known a more frightful crime. It is terrible to see our generation the prey of such horrors. My heart is torn by them, but it is possible to believe that the blockade drawn about the central empires (Germany and Austria) which condemns millions of innocents to famine, was inspired by really human sentiments?"

VIENNA, June 21.—The Russians are retreating all along the line in Galicia, it is officially announced. The Teutonic allies have won another important victory over the Russians west of Lemberg, and it is believed that the capture of the city by the Austrians and Germans is now a matter of only a few days. DOUBT OF GUILT, SAYS GOVERNOR

By International News Service.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 21.—"It was a plain case of duty as I saw it," said Governor John M. Slaton today, discussing his action in commuting to life imprisonment the sentence of Leo M. Frank, who had been condemned to die on the scaffold tomorrow for the murder of Mary Phagan.

"If I had failed to commute Frank's sentence I would have been guilty of murder, as I see it," said the Governor.

"Of course, I care for the public approbation," the Governor continued in explaining his course, "but I could not have that man's blood on my hands under the circumstances.

"I can plow and hoe and live in obscurity if necessary, but I could not afford not to commute him. I believe the people will realize that this was my only course.

"The entire Frank case," the Governor declared, "hung on whether or not Mary Phagan was killed in the metal room and whether or not Frank had helped carry the body to the basement.

FRANK'S SENTENCE COMMUTED TO IMPRISONMENT FOR LIFE

"I am confident that time will justify the wisdom of my course," he said. "Solicitor Dorsey has studied this case constantly, but I believe he does not know the evidence any better than I know it. I almost know it by heart, and there is plenty of doubt of Frank's guilt.

"The scoundrel Conley admits enough in his tale to cause misgivings over the whole narrative.

"All I ask now," said the Governor, "is that the people of Georgia withhold judgment until they have given calm and careful consideration of the statement on this case. I am sure that my action has been the right one the just one and the one that all patriotic Georgians will agree with."

Frank was removed secretly from the jail here in the early morning hours and taken to the State prison farm at Milledgeville, arriving there shortly after 3 a. m. He was taken first by train to Macon and there placed in automobile for the trip to Milledgeville, 50 miles distant.

GOVERNOR IS THREATENED.

The Atlanta police at 9 o'clock dispersed a crowd of men in Marietta street who were indulging in threats against Governor Slaton. Most of the men were from Cobb County, where Mary Phagan lived before she came to Atlanta. Five men were arrested on the ground was scattered.

At 10 a. m. the chief of police ordered all "near-beer" saloons and locker clubs closed and called out the reserve police. No crowds were allowed to gather on the street. Every preparation was made to nip the trouble in its incipiency.

Governor Slaton secretly before noon officially confirmed the commutation of Frank's sentence and issued an 18,000-word statement outlining his position.

GOVERNOR'S STATEMENT.

After reviewing the case from the day Mary Phagan was murdered, the Governor said:

This case has been the subject of exhaustive comment through the newspapers in the United States and has occasioned the transmission of more than 100,000 letters from various States, requesting clemency. Many communications have been received from citizens of this State advocating or opposing interference with the sentence of the court.

I desire to say in this connection that the people of the State of Georgia desire the esteem and good will of every other State in the Union. Every good citizen wishes the approbation of his fellows, and a State or nation is not excepted.

Many newspapers and multitudes of people have attacked the State of Georgia because of the conviction of Leo M. Frank, and have declared the conviction to have been through the domination of a mob and with no evidence to support the verdict. This opinion has been formed to a great extent by those who have not read the evidence and who are unacquainted with the judicial procedure in our State.

I have been unable to even open a large proportion of the letters sent me because of their number and because I could not go through them gain any assistance in determining my duty.

The murder committed was a most heinous one. A young girl was strangled to death by a cord tied around her throat and the offender deserves the punishment of death. The only question is as to the identity of the criminal.

The responsibility is on the people of Georgia to protect the lives of her citizens and to maintain the dignity of her laws, and I feel that I must be made to seen the approbation of citizens of other States and the enforcement of our laws against offenders, whether powerful or weak, nor must choose the latter alternative.

When Frank was indicted and the air was filled with rumors, there was intense feeling and to such extent that my predecessor, Governor Brown, stated in argument before me that he had the militia ready to protect the defendant in the event any attack was made.

During the progress of the trial, feeling against Frank was intense.

If the audience in the court room manifested their deep resentment toward Frank, it was largely the evidence of feeling beyond the power of a court to correct. It would be difficult anywhere for an appellate court, or even a trial court to grant a new trial in a case which occupied thirty days, because the audience in the courtroom upon a few occasions, indicated their sympathies. However the deep feeling against Frank which developed in the progress of the evidence was in the atmosphere, and regardless of the commission of those acts of which the court would take cognizance, the feeling of the purpose was strong.

SUSTAINS THE COURT.

Judge Roan, in the exercise of precaution, requested both counsel and defendant be absent when the verdict was rendered in order to avoid any possible demonstration in the event of acquittal. The jury found the defendant guilty and with the exception of demonstrations outside the courtroom there was no disorder.

Hence, it will be seen that nothing was done which courts of any State could correct through legal machinery.

A court must have something more than an atmosphere with which to deal and especially when that atmosphere has been created through the processes of evidence in disclosing a horrible crime.

Our Supreme Court, after carefully considering the evidence as to demonstrations made by spectators, declared them without merit, and in this regard the orderly processes of our tribunals are not subject to criticism.

Many newspapers and non-residents have declared that Frank was convicted without any evidence to sustain the verdict. In large measure those giving expression to this utterance have not read the evidence and are not acquainted with the facts. The same may be said regarding many of those who are demanding his execution.

Governor Slaton's statement went minutely into the details of the trial, setting forth all the testimony and its bearing on the case.

FRANK ARRIVES SAFE AT PRISON FARM IN AUTOMOBILE

ATLANTA, Ga., June 21.—The trip of Leo M. Frank from the Atlanta jail to the State prison farm at Milledgeville was made without noteworthy incident.

At Macon, the train was met by an automobile. Frank and his guards left the train and entered the machine. The party left at once for Milledgeville, where Frank will probably be given some light work.

The prisoner had little to say about his case or about the action of the Governor in commuting his sentence when approached by reporters in the car.

TRANSFER MADE AT NIGHT.

Sheriff Mangum said that the Governor had commuted the sentence early in the night and that the plans had been at once made for taking Frank secretly to the State farm.

With reporters watching the jail Frank was slipped out of a back door and rushed to the railroad station. There tickets were purchased and the party boarded a train.

Frank was taken from an ambulance to the station and it was supposed the passenger was a sick man.

It was feared by Governor Slaton that news of the commutation would cause rioting in this city. It was to avoid an attempting lynching that Frank was removed secretly from Atlanta before the news of the Governor's action was officially given out.

There had been rumors here last night that Frank's sentence was to be commuted, but the local newspapers knew nothing of the prisoner's departure until a telegram came from Macon, saying the train had arrived there in charge of Sheriff Mangum of Fulton County and four deputies.

Frank was not handcuffed. The dispatch said that he was pale and emaciated, and walked with the greatest difficulty.

It was just about midnight that Frank was smuggled from the jail and hurried to the railway station in an ambulance. Frank had a handkerchief over his face and he seemed very ill.

News of the removal of the prisoner and the extension of executive clemency did not cause any great surprise here, as such action had been widely anticipated.

For the second time admission was refused to the cell of Frank on Sunday except in the case of members of his family and close personal friends. Five hundred persons called at the county jail throughout the day and asked to see Frank on some pretext or other. Frank was cheerful and told his wife and father he was certain that Governor Slaton would help him.

Frank was convicted of the murder of fourteen-year-old Mary Phagan, after a sensational trial. He tried to get a new trial in the Superior Court, but was turned down.

An appeal was taken to the United States Supreme Court and the decision there was likewise against Frank. In the meantime the case had become a national controversy into which racial feeling entered Frank is a Jew.

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP CANADIAN ARMORY AND BIG MANUFACTORY

By International News Service.

DETROIT, June 21.—Twenty-six sticks of dynamite attached to a time fuse that had been set for 3:15 a. m. were found under the rear of the Windsor Armory, across the river in Canada, today.

The discovery was made at 8:15 three hours after a violent explosion had shaken the manufacturing plant of Peabody, Ltd., in Walkerville, shattering every glass in the office and causing a damage estimated at from $5,000 to $10,000. The bomb under the Peabody plant went off at 2:07 a. m.

The fuse cap attacked to the bomb under the Windsor armory had exploded, blowing off the top of the grip in which it was concealed. The main charge, however, had failed to explode. To this fact several men stationed in the armory at night probably owe their lives.

The obvious connection between the explosions in the Peabody plant and the attempt to wreck the armory immediately stimulated visions of a wholesale plot of destruction. Windsor and Walkerville authorities ordered a thorough inspection of all public buildings and of every industry associated in any way with the manufacture of war materials. No other bombs were found. One arrest has been made.

MADE BRITISH UNIFORMS.

Horace B. Peabody of Grosse Pointe, head of the Peabody company, said threats had been made to blow up his plant, although the company has been devoting most of its time in the last few months to the manufacture of uniforms for the British soldiers. Mr. Peabody expressed the belief that the bomb had been placed by "German sympathizers from across the river."

The Peabody company had just delivered an order of 115,000 British uniforms and was starting on a huge consignment of shirts for British soldiers. A man arrested on suspicion was later released on proving himself ignorant of the explosion. A Grand Trunk detective declared he saw an automobile pass the plant ten minutes before the explosion occurred and about five minutes after the Peabody blow-up the car sped back at terrific speed.

Military and civil authorities are searching for two men and a woman who are responsible, they believe, for the attempted dynamiting.

SPIES IN RUSSIA.

NEW YORK, June 21.—John F. Bass, war correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, who has returned after ten months on Russia's eastern battle front, says that many armories and manufacturing plants in the interior of Russia, which were well stocked with ammunition and arms at the beginning of the war, have been blown up by German spies, whose activity in that work has been facilitated by connivance with Russian military officers, themselves Germans or of German descent. Mr. Bass himself was in Petrograd, he asserted, when a large powder plant was destroyed by a German agent.

"These spies," continued Mr. Bass, "maintain a regular system of communication throughout the empire, and a number of Russian officers are known to be implicated with them. While I was at Warsaw I saw one Russian officers hanged for espionage. He was caught red-handed."

England to Call for a Loan of $2,500,000,000

By International News Service.

LONDON, June 21.—The new loan by England is to be for an enormous amount; indeed the figure mentioned on the stock exchange is no less than $2,500,000,000.

There is reason to believe that the small investor will be invited to help pay for the war, the man with a deposit in a savings bank will be able to subscribe his $25 or $50.

Another excellent suggestion is some special action should be offered whereby the American investor could be persuaded to subscribe some portion of the issue. The immense purchases made by this country and its allies in the United States have created an adverse balance of trade, and the subscription by America for a portion of the loan would go far toward rectifying the consequent low level of exchange on London.

Prussian-Born Head for Atlantic Fleet

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Rear Admiral Boush has been ordered relieved of command of the second division Atlantic fleet. It is understood succession to the command, second in importance of the division commands of the fleet, rests between Rear Admiral Fechteler, at the War College at Newport, and Rear Admiral Pullam. Fechteler, the only Prussian-born flag officer in the active United States service, is the favorite.

COOLIDGE FAVORS BETTER STREETS

Louis A. Coolidge, treasurer of the United Shoe Machinery Company, one of Boston's biggest business concerns, declares Boston's need of immediate street improvements is imperative.

He says the best investment the city can make at the present time is the bettering of its streets.

Treasurer Coolidge's vigorous demand for better streets is only another endorsement of the AMERICANS efforts to have the streets of Boston improved immediately. Treasurer Coolidge says:

By LOUIS A. COOLIDGE.

The streets of Boston are a disgrace to the city. No other town of consequence in the United States approaches ours in the deplorable condition of its pavements. We are known throughout the country by this blemish and it is hard for visitors from other cities to conceive why we permit existing conditions to continue.

The streets of a city should be an asset. Here they are a liability. They are a distinct financial detriment in the never ceasing wear and tear on wheels and springs and hoofs of trucks, in the depreciation of the value of draft horses and the unnecessary strain upon by men who do the heavy trucking work about the city.

That is an obvious loss which anyone can see at a glance, but there is another loss which is less obvious and impossible of calculation in the nervous strain upon the thousands of clerks and executives who are compelled to carry on their daily work in the midst of a confusion and uproar which would put a boiler factory or a railroad switching yard to shame.

It has for generations been an aphorism that a sure index to the quality of a community is in the character of its roads. Judged by that standard, Boston has little cause for pride.

In the mere matter of dollars and cents, the most profitable investment which the city could make today would be to authorize generous appropriations for the improvement of its streets. Just how these appropriations should be expended can well be left to the decision of experts in road building, but they are amply justified and imperatively demanded.

I have spoken simply of the business side of the proposition, but there are other considerations involving questions of local pride and sentiment which in themselves ought to suffice to rouse the city to the urgent need for change.

WHEEL CHAIR "RHEUMATIC" GLOBE TROTTER WALKS WILL MEET PUBLIC AND TELL OF HIS RECOVERY

Travelled 37,000 Miles in Wheel Chair Looking for Relief—Finally Discovers Simple Remedy in New England.

William W. Graff wins his long fight for the use of his limbs—for "Happy Bill," as he is familiarly known, now walks. You've seen him in his wheel chair, for he is famed the country over as the rheumatic wheel chair globe trotter. He is going to remain in Boston all this week to meet the public and tell them how he recovered after spending 15 years in a wheel chair.

He said: "It seems pretty good to get out of that old chair. I want to be on the move all the time. No one but a rheumatic sufferer can understand what I have gone through, and now that I am able to walk I want to meet every man and woman suffering from this terrible disease. I want to shout from the housetops how I recovered from rheumatism after suffering 32 years. Most of my trouble was confined to my legs and feet, which were useless from the disease, as well as my right arm.

"Naturally, traveling about as I did, almost everyone I met had a sure cure—and I tried anything and everything in the hope of relief. Sometimes I would be relieved a little while, but as soon as the effects of the medicine wore off I would be worse than ever again. I have travelled 37,000 miles in my wheel chair, selling souvenirs to raise funds to take me to Germany for treatment, and was about to start when the war broke out.

"You want to know what wrought my recovery? Well, last October I was in Hartford, Conn., and met a man I had seen at the Hot Springs, and who was being treated by the same physician. When I had previously seen him he was very lame, and this time he seemed well. He told me he had been taking Var-ne-sis, and said he thought it would help me.

"I started in then taking Var-ne-sis. Soon I became conscious of an increased strength in my limbs. Then I became almost religious in my attention to take this remedy. This is the result." And "Happy Bill" stood up, moved about, waved his right arm and smiled in perfect happiness.

"At first I was like an infant learning to walk. I bumped into things, but I walked, and that was the main thing. Var-ne-sis is the cause of my recovery. I feel so grateful that I could sing the name of that remedy, and I want to talk about it all the time.

"I know what rheumatism is—I've had it for 32 years, and I know what one has to suffer. For that reason I want to meet every man and woman who is suffering from the disease, and tell them my experience and how a simple remedy like Var-ne-sis succeeded and made me walk, after springs, specialists and all sorts of remedies failed. I want to meet the friends of rheumatics, and particularly friends that have seen me in my wheel chair in Boston and other cities.

"If it is impossible to call, write to me at 32 Tremont street, Lynn, Mass. I will give you the details of my recovery. Var-ne-sis has done so much for me that I want every other rheumatic to share the joy of freedom from pain with me."

"I believe this is one of the most remarkable recoveries from rheumatism ever published," said W. A. Varney, the discoverer of Var-ne-sis, "and I would like to have the public meet this man and see him as he is today. See his cards signed by the Mayors of the different cities that he has passed through, and investigate in every possible way. One can hardly credit such remarkable evidence until they take time to investigate. I say to rheumatics that are suffering: Investigate; spend five minutes with him in the interest of some sufferer."

Send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass., for the story of Var-ne-sis and "Happy Bill's" letter to the public.

Remember William W. Graff will be at the Var-ne-sis Boston office, 140 Boylston street, every day this week from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. to give his experience in travelling about the world looking for a remedy for rheumatism. Here you will also see the large collection of crutches, wheel chairs, canes, photographs of others that have regained their health through Var-ne-sis.

Get Var-ne-sis now, today, at Riker, Jaynes and other reliable druggists, and know what good health means.—Advertisement.

GERMAN VICTORY IN THE ARGONNE

By FREDERICK WERNER,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, June 21.—The capture of several lines of French trenches over a front about a mile and a quarter long was officially announced today by the German War Office.

This success was achieved in the western part of the Argonne district and resulted in heavy losses for the French.

The Germans also captured four officers, 623 privates, two machine guns and two mine-throwers.

Admiral Howard Arrives at Guaymas

Say du Pont Is 'Smith', Giver of Tech Millions

Word from Wilmington, Del., that General T. Coleman du Pont, the powder king, had passed out of the presidency of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, has admitted gifts to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, had to the conclusion in Boston today that no du Pont was home other than the "Mysterious Mr. Smith," who had given Tech nearly $2,000,000 in the past three years.

General du Pont said: "I have given Massachusetts Technology something, but the amount is half two, and one half millions, does not reach that figure. When people the newspapers say they did not seem willing to hang it on me."

The description of the donor by President Maclaurin fitted General du Pont. He attended the school three years, but was not graduated.

SIEGEL TO SERVE TERM IN JAIL

many others became depositors and banks. Siegel has testified:

"I considered my music department as a private institution, and Mr. Vogel and myself owned it to the exclusion of all others."

Vogel was Frank E. Vogel, the partner, who has died since the failure of the Siegel stores.

In 1909 the so-called Siegel-Cooper combination was organized. This Delaware corporation with a capital of $10,000,000. It guaranteed the stores against the debts incurred against.

It has appeared that the Siegel stores of Siegel were always a failure, but that by stirring the public with extravagant claims made to appear otherwise.

The receivership proceedings were opposed by Siegel, but the stores were appointed and all the Eastern Siegel concerns.

The resultant investigation has already disclosed books and other irregularities, as a result of which Siegel & Vogel were indicted for false swearing and forgery in twelve counts. Siegel was brought to trial on the charges, but the day after Siegel's indictment, the courts ordered the Siegel stores closed to receivership, and the stores and stocks were sold.

Siegel was convicted of a misdemeanor, a recent New York law managing the status of his illegal acts. He has been allowed seven months in the Monroe County Penitentiary with the provision that his sentence be suspended till June, 1915, to see if he would be able to make a substantial payment to his creditors. He offered a payment of $100,000, the committee of his creditors at first accepted this. Then one of the committee, Mrs. Emmeline Baker, who had $1,000 deposited in the Siegel bank in New York, filed charges which resulted in a grand jury investigation.

Siegel's offer of $100,000 was coupled with a provision that he receive business, turning over all the earnings to the creditors, except $60,000 a year for living expenses.

Creditors of Siegel's Boston stores have been paid in the neighborhood of three quarters of a million dollars. The total claims ranged near the four-million mark. Siegel's deposits in the Siegel bank amounted totalling $80,000.

Siegel admitted a personal note to his New York bank of $154,000. He declares he is now "penniless."

BOMBARD FORTS ABOUT LEMBERG

offensive operations by the Austro-German armies resulted on Saturday in a battle at Magierow and Grodek, where a new complete victory was won.

After we had crossed the San River and recaptured Przemysl, the enemy, who had been heavily reinforced, was compelled by the success of the Teutonic allies between the Lubaczowka River and the Upper Dniester River to retreat still further last Tuesday.

The enemy then retired in an eastern and northeasterly direction, suffering heavy losses. During the following days the Russian army commander again concentrated the remainder of his shattered positions on the Wereszyca River in order to arrest our advance.

After heavy fighting along the whole front the Russian lines wavered again before the attacks of the Austrians and Germans and in an afternoon an assault was launched by the army of General von Mackensen, which broke the Russian position at Magierow.

Then the enemy began to retire on the Rawa-Ruska front and at Zolkiew, while he continued to offer stubborn resistance along the Wereszyca.

During the night part of the third army of General Boroevitch stormed strong Russian positions on both sides of the Lemberg road. At the same time other Teutonic corps everywhere penetrated the main position of the enemy.

Since 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon the Russians have been retreating all along the whole battle front in the direction of Lemberg, from both the north and the south, hotly pursued by our troops.

Thousands of Russian prisoners have been captured, together with great quantities of war materials.

To the Upper Dniester the enemy was compelled to evacuate his positions.

The Russians attacked the armies of General Pflanzer and General Baltin, but were repulsed at every point with heavy losses.

GREAT BATTLE FOR LEMBERG ON FRONT 35 MILES LONG

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, June 21.—A great battle for the possession of Lemberg is going on over a semi-circular front, thirty-five miles long, with the Germans and Austrians using every resource at their command against the Russians. Despite the fact the Russian armies in Galicia have been falling back since the first of May, Russia's faith in Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief, remains unbroken. When the proper time comes Grand Duke Nicholas is expected to make a strong which will stem the Austro-German rush and then drive forward just as he has done three times before in the operations in the east.

Russia is seriously crippled by scarcity of arms and ammunition.

The following brief official statement relative to operations in the southern theatre of war was issued here today:

"Transcaucasian front: On Friday the Turks attempted to take the offensive against our right flank in the direction of the coast, but were foiled. Our cavalry engaged the Turks in the direction of Alashgherd in Asia."

The interned golfers sent for their clubs, and are now able to devote practically their entire time and attention to the game.

Loses Suit to Make Grandmother Pay

Mrs. Annie E. Gifford of Attleboro, reputed to be worth $70,000, need not contribute to the support of her two grandchildren. Judge Morton so ruled in Superior Court today on the suit brought by Jerome S. Kilburn, the paternal grandfather of the children.

Kilburn says he has paid $1,875 in the last six years for the children's support and can no longer stand this expense. Judge Morton ruled that the children are not paupers and that the mother is able to support them.

48 ORE DI LOTTA AD FAVA CONQUISTATA ALLA BAIONETTA

MILANO, 20 giugno.—L'offensiva italiana contro la fortissima posizione austriaca sulla sinistra dell'Isonzo diviene sempre piu' effettiva e piu' generale.

Goritza e' attaccata da tre lati. Una delle Falite le batterie austriache sono ridotte al silenzio e le posizioni trincerate demolite. Le aeronavi cooperano con le truppe, distruggendo importanti depositi e le connessioni ferroviarie.

In tutti gli altri punti del fronte, gli Italiani avanzano con successo. Le prime quattro settimane di guerra si sono svolte fra continui, infaticati successi della armi italiane, dal Trentino sino all'Adriatico. Essi chiudono con la brillante vittoria di Plava, annunziata oggi dal General Cadorna.

Questa nuova fase di operazioni permette la concentrazione di forze contro Graditza al sud e contro Tolmino al nord. La battaglia e' stata solidamente rafforzata e che si potra' prendere col sacrificio di molte truppe.

Gli Austriaci sempre considerarono Goritza il punto strategico piu' importante di difesa agli attacchi dell'Italia, eppero, milioni vi furono spesi per rendere tutte le colline che la contornano imprendibili. Oltre i campi trincerati e molti forti, la citta' ha pure un parco stataerio.

L'importanza della citta' si rileva dal fatto che quattro connessioni ferroviarie e ben cinque strade rotabili la connettono ad ogni punto importante dell'Austria.

La popolazione civile evacuo' la citta' lo scorso 27 maggio. Dallora Goritza e tutti i monti circostanti sono stati forniti di formidabili artiglierie moderne.

"FRAMERS OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE U.S.A." NO. 1

James Madison—"Father of the Constitution"

THE FOURTH PRESIDENT of the United States considered it a greater honor to be declared the Father of the Constitution than to have been elected twice to the highest office in the gift of his countrymen. No more ardent, intelligent, far-sighted and constant student of governmental problems ever lived than Madison. They were his life-long passion. He it was who labored with all his gigantic ability and indomitable will to have deeply imbedded in our National Law those vital principles which forever guarantee to all Americans Religious, Commercial and Personal Liberty. In private life he was genial and social—yet temperate. Many a foaming glass of good barley-malt beer he drank with his bosom friend Thomas Jefferson—Father of the Declaration of Independence." Madison died at 85 and Jefferson at 83, both were unalterably opposed to tyrannous Prohibition Laws, and advocated legislation which encouraged the brewing industry. Upon the tenets of the Constitution of the U.S.A. (to which Madison devoted the best of his genius) Anheuser-Busch 58 years ago founded their great institution. To-day 7500 people are daily required to produce and market their honest brews. Their chief brand Budweiser is sold throughout the civilized world—the drink of your forefathers—the drink of the noblest men who ever lived—the drink of the great triumphant nations. Budweiser sales exceed any other beer by millions of bottles.

"FIGHT FAIR," SAYS WILLARD IN THE STORY OF HIS LIFE

(Copyright, 1915, by A. Morris. All rights reserved.)

MY victory over Fink gave me a lot of confidence in myself. I knew I had a lot to learn, but I felt I could learn it. My next battle was with a big 220-pounder named Al Mandeno. We fought at Oklahoma City, and I dropped him in four rounds with a left swing to the jaw.

I came mighty near letting him stay. The crowd made me mad by the way it yelled for blood. Poor Mandeno put up a good fight, but when I got him in Queer street you'd have thought he'd done something mean to every man in the house.

"Kill him!" they yelled. "Knock his block off, Jess!"

I've had a good many fights since then, but I've never been able to get used to that "eat him up" stuff. I don't mind meeting. Nobody does. When a fellow puts in a good, clever punch on me I always feel like saying, "Good boy."

Most of the fellows that do the yelling for blood couldn't give a blow or take one. They're usually little spindle-shanked pinheads, without sporting blood or sporting knowledge. They've got a mean, cruel streak in them, and I'll bet all of them tormented cats and dogs when they were boys.

When you come right down to it, sportsmanship is a pretty good religion. Fight fair! Don't lose your temper! Don't pull off any dirty tricks! Also it takes a clean body, and clean minds usually go with clean bodies.

Prizefighting, as a matter of fact, is the only business in which fouling is punished by disqualification. A banker can swindle his depositors, a lawyer his clients, a merchant his customers, and get away with it nine cases out of ten. The fighter who doesn't play fair from bell to bell is disgraced.

I want my boys to grow up to be clean, decent, honest men. That's why I mean to make athletes out of them. I'm going to teach them to swim and ride and run and wrestle and box.

A healthy boy feels so good he doesn't want to drink or smoke, especially when he knows that whisky and tobacco will dnish him as an athlete.

I reckon most people think I'm a pretty dull fellow. They say I'm not a good mixer. The trouble is that most of the men I meet want me to have a drink or listen to a smutty story.

I hate drinking and I hate nasty stories. Whisky burns the stomach and filth burns the mind. I feel sure if I can get my boys to grow up physically sound they'll stay sound morally.

The Oklahoma people liked my style so well that they matched me for another fight there after the Mandeno knockout. This was Bill Schiller, and put him away in four rounds.

It was a victory that came close to costing me a lot, for I broke a knuckle on my right hand in the second round. I've got hands like hams, and it's hard to get gloves to fit me. In the Schiller fight the gloves were particularly small, and it was all I could do to get into them.

I couldn't close my hands at all, and so smash went a knuckle. Today I have my gloves made to order. That injury worried me a lot. Both my hands are fists, and a fighter as capital to a business man. I don't believe that Jeffries would ever have whipped Johnson if Jim had had a handful of iron in shape.

Held smashed them up so much that at the last they were no better than mush-bags. In their last fight Bob wished Jeffries on the jaw at least a hundred times in the eight rounds.

They've a kick in every punch, too, for they staggered Jeff every time. But Bob's knuckles were gone. He made as well been biting the big heftermaker with a pillow.

In the old days, when they fought with bare knuckles, the champions used to pickle their hands in brine to make them hard. They also cricked their elbows. When I was in Oklahoma City I met an old peddler who had been a fighter in England.

He called himself the "Brummagem Lad" and his face looked like nothing building. I never seen such a mug in all my life. He didn't have much use for me or any other modern fighter.

"You perlor blokes," he called us. "The Tipton Slasher could lick the 'ole bloomin' bundle o' yer in one ring, an' finished 'er off with 'is toothpick out o' 'is mouth. Fights! Kill me dead, but yer a lot o' dancin' BA'Ks."

Maybe so. There certainly is doubt about the fact that we don't have any such battles now as they had a hundred years ago. Lots of the old-timers fought for the love of fighting. Figg, the first champion, had a standing challenge to any man to fight for "love, money or a hellyful."

Figg was a great one for hitting his man between the eyes. You can do it with bare knuckles, but not with gloves. Not long ago I was reading an old book on the English prize ring, and I ran across this bunch of words:

"A blow between the eyebrows contributes greatly to victory, for the part being contused between two hard bodies—the fist and the os frontalis—there ensues a violent echymosis or extravasation of blood which fall down into the eyelids, and they being of lax tunicle, incapable of resisting the influx of blood, swell almost instantaneously, which violent intumescence soon obstructs the sight. The man thus incidently treated and artfully boodwinked is beat at his adversary's discretion."

Did you ever hear such a fool? Wherever I hear a man using a lot of big words I always figure he's trying to hide his lack of ideas.

Bob Whittaker, a famous fighter, lost a championship by being "indecently blinded and artfully boodwinked."

"Dame," he said, staggering around the ring. "I'm not beat, but what signifies when I can't see me mary."

John Broughton lost his championship by the same game. Jack Slack smashed him square between the eyes, putting him blind. The Duke of Cumberland had bet $10,000 on Broughton, and as Broughton stumbled around the ring the Duke fellow cursed him and guyed him.

I am very careful of my hands, and I've never had an accident since the Shiller fight. Ad Wolgast might be champion today but for his battered knuckles.

Heenan's famous fight with Morrissey was lost by a broken hand. In the forty-first round the Benicia Boy hit a pet with his right fist, breaking several bones. It was a brutal affair, I suppose, but you can't help admiring courage wherever you see it.

Heenan didn't whine about his smashed hand. He went on and finished the fight round after round, minutes, only losing when Heenan threw Morrissey to the turf. With only his left hand for use, Heenan sent at Morrissey like a tiger, slipping the punishment as well as taking it.

Morrissey was playing all the time for the hurt of Heenan's ear. By the eighth round the Benicia boy was gushing blood, but his gameness kept him up after his hands were useless.

His enemies had to lend him to the scratch in the eleventh round, and Morrissey soon landed the terrific left on the ear that ended the battle.

I do not like prizefighting. I never want to say a word that would make any boy take up it. It is a hard game, in which only the champions do well. For one who succeeds, a hundred fail, and get nothing to show for their work but cauliflower ears and a flat nose.

But I do say that the prize ring has taught some things. It has taught the thing we call gameness. The ring is no place for the coward or the whiner. And, best of all, it is the biggest temperance lesson ever preached.

Drunkards don't win championships. Drinking men don't stay champions.

Before I get through with this story I'm going to write a chapter on whiskey's graveyard of prizefighters. There's won't be many big headstones in it, for they don't waste monuments on dead drunkards.

But every unmarked grave in it stands for a life that was once rich and famous. Great champions many of them—big, splendid fellows who seemed like nothing could ever hurt them.

They won, and success went to their heads. Men and women crowded around them and made fools of them. They took one drink at first, and then took two. The world was a fine place, and everybody in it was a friend.

Whiskey and late hours—late hours and whiskey. They began to find that their legs did not bring up to fight, and that their blows were slow. They took more whiskey to quicken up.

And then they began to lose. Strength gone, fame gone—only whiskey left—only the Potter's field space to them. Only the undertaker to go with the burial.

Just another fool who thought that whiskey was easy to whip!

(Tomorrow Willard will talk about knockout blows and how they were discovered.)

WOMEN FAINT IN TUNNEL ACCIDENT

Ten women fainted, one man was taken to the hospital and scores of commuters were thrown into a panic when they were caught in a dense, suffocating smoke in the East Boston Tunnel, 30 feet beneath Boston Harbor, early today as the rolling stock of cars ignited the power.

For nearly an hour the frightened passengers were stalled in the cars, surrounded by long coils of live wire which, when touched, sizzled with the fury of electricity. Most of the cars were packed with returning theatre crowds. When the wires gave way and smoke filled the cars many made a rush for the doors, but were persuaded that they be opened. This the guards refused to do, as it was feared that several women fainted.

Many of the women passengers required assistance from friends or kindly disposed strangers. But one man, overcome by the fumes, had to be taken to the hospital. He was Fayette Tukey, a motorman on one of the cars. He was taken to the East Boston Relief Station, temporarily blinded from the flashes of the wires, a shattered nerve and nothing to show for their work but cauliflower ears and a flat nose.

But I do say that the prize ring has taught some things. It has taught the thing we call gameness. The ring is no place for the coward or the whiner. And, best of all, it is the biggest temperance lesson ever preached.

Aged Wakefield Man Is Killed by Train

John C. Campbell, 80 years of age, was instantly killed today at the Wakefield railway crossing by the 7:39 Boston-bound Haverhill express. The accident was witnessed by 50 or more people waiting at the station, but no one saw the man in time to warn him of the approaching danger. He was struck with such force that his body was hurled from the North-ern avenue cross walk to the Allen street crossing, a distance of 200 feet.

NOYES READS PHI BETA KAPPA POEM

Alfred Noyes the English poet, read at the Harvard Tercentenary celebration today a poem in which he repeated the charges of German atrocities in Belgium. One passage in the poem is:

"And the children of the Rhine-land
Whose hands are red with wine
Shall remember a name as long as the Rhine shall run."

They carried a map of all
The Ghosts of Belgium
Printed on rose-red paper
Behind the lines of the front.
They studied our deepest gaps
They drilled our deepest gaps
Behind the lines of the front.
And the new names rose to me:
Fat as the cows of Essen,
Lean as the wolves that follow,
Red as the wine they drink,
Red as the wine they spill,
Red as the wine they shed

"The Rabbit's" Column

By Walter J. Maranville
SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

It doesn't always take hitting speed to carry a twirler to the dizzy heights of fame. Ole' Nap Rucker, who is southpawing for Charles Historical Ebbetts Trolley Dodgers, is proving that theory.

Rucker is slow-balling his way back into the realm of class. Years ago Napoleon blazed his way to glory on the diamond hitting speed. But the day came when the old arm went back on the great southpaw. He demanded too much of it in the strenuous campaign of 1913. The arm gave out.

All during 1914 Rucker nursed the old wing along, trying to get it back into shape. But his efforts were fruitless.

This year the big southpaw started off with different tactics. He saw that the old speed thing was for him no more. He figured he was still good enough to stay up in the big tent, however, and he set about finding a way to win ball games with a little less stuff.

A couple of weeks ago, when he was throwing at the Giants at the Polo Grounds, Rucker staged his first real "come-back." He made McGraw's warriors literally eat out of his hand. And it was all done with a slow ball. He floated up balls to the Giants that looked like balloons, they traveled so slow. The Polo grounders nuz their spikes into the ground and swung at Rucker's offerings with everything they had. They hit measly little pop-ups and easy rollers to the infield.

Rucker simply slow-balled them to death. His only chance of striking 'em up was whenever one got a little lower than usual.

The following has been going the rounds of the press:

Little Judah J. Dover, Jr., is in reaching a stage where he does some thinking for himself. Not long ago he confronted his father and asked:

"Father, who is the best second baseman in the world?"

"Who's the best father in the world?" countered Mr. Keystone Kink.

"I know you're the best father in the world," replied Judah, "but—he hesitated and studied the matter an instant—father, what does Eddie Collins call his little boy?"

When the Federal League was launched more than a year ago the promoters announced the baseball laws which had been framed by organized magnates. They went into court later with arguments against the legality and fairness of the option clause, the ten days release notice and the waiver request. Yet the Feds are employing exactly the same methods in handling their players.

In the case of Benny Kauff the Feds maintained when the Giants tried to sign him that the Wards had a legal claim to his services because in Kauff's contract, which they had purchased, there was an option clause. In the cases of Pitcher Cunnitz of the Pittsburg and Manager Schlafly of the Buffeds the latter's legal talent notices in their contracts were used to let them out.

On top of these incidents comes the news that the Feds are asking one another to waive claim on various players who are to be sent to the "farm," known as the Federal League, in New England. To sum up briefly, the Feds are ready to admit that the cries of Organized Baseball are necessary for the proper management of the national game.

Florence Rowland, manager of the White Sox, revived an interesting topic recently when he said that his success rested entirely with the players. It would be unfair to blame McGraw and Mack for the low standing of the Giants and Athletics, respectively, yet the fact remains that with the material in hand these noted field marshals cannot make their teams step to the front.

Roger Bresnahan was called a failure when the Britions retired him from the leadership of the Cardinals several years ago, but now he is receiving credit for the high position of the Cubs. Last year when the Browns were playing good ball St. Louis fans blamed Branch Rickey, but just at present Rickey is a target for much unjust criticism.

Pat Moran, a new manager, is receiving credit for the raise in the fine playing of the Phillies, while in Brooklyn persons who scored Uncle Wilbert Robinson a year ago are taking off their hats to him because the Dodgers are in the first division. Jake Griffith was a hero in Washington two years ago, but the many defeats sustained by the Senators this season have prompted cries for his scalp.

In other words a winning team makes a successful manager, no matter who he happens to be, while the commander of a losing ball club must be the goat.

Henry O'Day never was a sociable chap and during his managerial career he did not improve in this respect. When he took charge of the Cubs several of the employes who had known him tried to get friendly.

"What's the matter with that fellow?" they asked each other. "I speak to him and he only growled."

After things commenced to go wrong they gave the manager a wide berth. Then, one day Harry Neil dropped into the office.

"Say," he remarked, "Hank and I are getting to be great pals."

"What!" exclaimed several.

"Sure thing," said Harry. "Regular chums now. I was sitting reading a newspaper and he came up and took it away from me."

NO BALL GAME IN THE HUB TODAY

Boston will be without any baseball midinee today. Our honorable Red Sox are in Washington, while our badly-belabored, still much beloved, Braves are en route East from their miserable western jaunt.

The Braves show at Fenway Park tomorrow, as well as Wednesday and Thursday, with the ambitious Dodgers. Then Chief Stallings departs with his Sunz for the metropolis of New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn, to return again July 4. As the Red Sox return Friday morning, and get into action that afternoon with the Yankees, there won't be any lapse in the daily baseball show following today's open date.

The Yankees are to call for four frolics. Next the Athletics will come for a like stand, followed by the Nationals, four games also. Then, when the Braves succeed the Red Sox, they will entertain their four western rivals before hitting the road again.

The Braves only lugged four of their thirteen games out West. Good fielding is the only satisfactory ingredient Stallings received from his warriors. The artillery was painfully quiet, the base running very plunk and the pitching absurd. Pat Ragan alone showed class on the hillock. He won two decisions and had his St. Louis game kicked away in twelve innings. Rudolph won in Cincinnati, but lost in Chicago and St. Louis. Tyler only offered one good game. Crutcher went very poorly, while the Hon. Bill James did not show at all.

When the Braves embarked on their trip West the night of June 2 they owned a percentage notch of .513 and stood but three games out of first place. The Cubs were leading with the Phillies second and the locals third. Today the Braves are fourth and they stand six and one-half games behind the Cubs, the occupants of the lofty top position.

RED SOX IN TWO GAMES TODAY

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The haughty Red Sox, a bang-up second in the American League race, are in readiness for five battles with the Nationals. A double-header is programmed for this afternoon, with single scraps tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday. Fridays the Carrigans will be back at Fenway Park, and will clash with their three Eastern rivals before striking out for the West on the evening of July 2.

The Nationals have just got through taking a couple of falls out of the Tigers and stand precisely at the .500 notch. Shaw is almost bound to start one of the games this afternoon, while Gallia or Boehling is fancied to go to the firing line in the other encounter.

Manager Carrigan is here with practically a complete family. The Hose made it a day run over from Boston, arriving a little after 11 o'clock last night, so the players were not forced to slumber aboard Pullmans. Carrigan stated this morning that he was not a bit sure what two pitchers he would use today. Shaw will probably draw one of the assignments, and perhaps Collins or Ruth will start the other frolic.

After this series the Red Sox will not return to Washington until the last week in the season, being booked for games October 1 and 2. The current series bids fair to be stubbornly contested, as the Nationals have been playing at top speed for the past week, while the Red Sox are traveling at a swifter clip than any other club in the American League.

Fresh Favors for Fans

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Let Dutch Leonard regain his old cunning and our Red Sox should canter off with the confusion pretty much as they please. That's practically all Bill Carrigan needs in order to pull the trick. Still, if by hook or crook Collins should round back into his 1913 form and Gregg should become the gay baffler as in 1912, those two happy bits of fortune, coupled with a come-back by Leonard, ought to put the Sox so far in front by Labor Day that from then on there won't be anything to worry about. Clear through the band is supremely confident as to the final outcome. In fact the players don't see how they can lose. The club is so nicely stocked with vets there is no danger of the blustering confidence hurting and the bunch proving spineless. To sum up a case of the players being fobbed with the idea that they go to man the strongest club in the A. L. and that this is going to be their year.

The Sox experienced so much ill fortune the first few days of the campaign it does seem as if they have left the lion's share of their worries behind. Even right now, with the club fairly burning up the league, it is showing without Scott. Then there is Wood, who really got the Sox started on their climb by winning glorious victories in Philadelphia and New York, before Speed was reached sight at that time when the baseball sharks were preparing his obituary, has been and is a wreck, and is not a bit sure that he is going to be able to do his pitching until the pain leaves his good right arm. Further slams for the Sox when they were being battered about were the absences of Leonard and Collins and Larry Gardner's disablement.

And a big item is Tris Speaker has started to pickle the pill and drive in the runs.

Ty Cobb up to his last visit to Boston, always held Forrest Cady in high esteem. But the Sox catcher got the Peach's goat when some reckless reporter was flying about the Fenway Jot and now it's all off between the two. Tean day of the mad massacre, the day the Tigers inaugurated their stand by doing up our haughty Hose by the one-sided landish score of 15 to 0. The date and said wellspring was June 9 and not since then has the Sox tasted defeat. Cobb started doing everything that afternoon, and truth is that the Coming Champs were made to look sick. While the melee was at its height, Ty went the full Derby route issuing sarcastic remarks. Of course the Sox barked back. Cady contributed to a couple of hot sallies that burnt. After the carnival Cobb waited for Cady in the clubhouse, as it is said, and the appended bit of dialogue ensued.

Cobb: "I've always liked you, Forrest, and considered you one of the game's gentlemen."

Cady: "And I've always been strong for you, Ty."

Cobb: "But you forgot yourself today, and now I'm not so sure about you."

Cady: "Yes, yes, go on."

Cobb: "I guess we'd better call off our friendship."

Cady: "Suits me if you insist."

Cobb: "Yes, it had better be."

Cady: "Well, what does that mean, Ty?"

Cobb: "You can guess, can't you? You know, I'm generally pretty much to that old ball game, and I have been known to hit the plate pretty hard."

Cady: "Well, get me if you can; I'll be there waiting for you every time there's a play."

Said conversation, naturally, is not completely exact, but it's the gist of what transpired and now the bugs must wait and see what's going to be the result of the Cobb vs. Cady combat.

Lee Fohl's hired men fielded sloppily and ran the bags as if they had been in the trenches all Summer. So it is no wonder the White Sox thrashed 'em twice. Advices from Cleveland state that Guy Morton might have whipped D. V. J. Scott—how that could have happened inasmuch as D. V. J. applied the brush is hard to fathom—if Eddie Collins had not flunked out a fluky homer in the very final chapter. Be it as it may, Scott was at his best and Morton's game was likewise a good one.

Though the Indians lost nine of their thirteen combats in the East, some 12,000 bugs bade them welcome home.

Surely the Tigers are not very fetching right now. Sam Fox Tem J. Austin didn't work Carl Weilman here. But he used him in Jennings-boosting spots and the lanky one prettily applied the brush. Then the Walkers hit together for the lone run of the show. Cobb got one hit and one steal.

The Cubs are keeping the White Sox company giving Chicago a pair of front-runners. Hence that city's bugs are victims of the gay gladness of 1906 being repeated. B. Bresnahan has his band hitting and hustling. His pitching is also very so-so, while the fielding lately has been sound. Yesterday Schulte, Saier and Phelan injected four-baggers into the frolic with the Dodgers. So, Robbie's entry dropped into third straight game. A mental slip by George Pilyer Pierce, that of throwing to third after gathering in a bounder with the bases packed in the ninth with the bat a sure out at the pan, averted a Dodger shutout.

Rene Dale, the Reds' good-looking Texas recruit, has taken to pitching a perfect game yesterday. Only twenty-four Phils faced him in 9 innings, but he was nicked for three safeties in the ninth and Benton had to go to the rescue. The Reds held right and the Reds just did win. Demaree was also at his best, yielding only five blows. Two singles and a steal busted up the whitewash in the sixth canto. Groh starred on third, while Wade Killifer made a remarkable catch off Cravath in No. 8.

Double play: Coveney and Riley.

A Chance to See the World's Series Free

The American Will Send 25 Fans to All the Games With All Expenses Paid

PITCHER TYLER of the Boston Braves. EDDIE COLLINS of the Chicago White Sox.

NOMINATE YOURSELF TODAY AND WIN ONE OF THE FREE TRIPS FOR YOURSELF

Ask any fan how much he would be willing to sacrifice now to be sure to have a reserved seat at the coming World's Series games.

When you get his answer, you will realize the liberality of the American's offer to send twenty-five fans to all of the World's Series games, with all expenses paid by this newspaper.

At every game there will be a reserved section for the band of Boston American "rooters." And the twenty-five who win the Boston American's free trips will be spared the bitter disappointment that thousands of fans will experience when they find they are unable to obtain seats for the world's championship games.

No member of the fortunate twenty-five will have to spend one cent on the pleasant journeys from city to city to see all of the games, wherever played.

They will travel in a special Pullman car and on arrival in the different cities will live at the leading hotels as the guests of the American.

WHY CANNOT YOU BECOME ONE OF THAT PARTY?

It does not matter whether you live in Boston or in some hamlet in the northern part of Maine. You are eligible if you are over 16 years of age and a resident of New England.

Now, Mr. Fan, if you have delayed in sending in that nomination—DO SO AT ONCE.

Don't start to feel badly a few weeks from now and bewail the fact that if you had started in at the beginning of the race YOU WOULD HAVE BEEN UP WITH THE LEADERS.

For this reason, we tell you now that the time to send in your nomination is IMMEDIATELY. The contest is just beginning.

Just think of it! A chance to see the World's Series free—all of them—wherever played.

This is an offer that should send every real baseball fan into a frenzy and stir him up to hustle to capture one of the twenty-five trips.

This year the struggle is certain to be a thrilling one. Many of the "wise ones" are predicting that at least one of the league winners will be located in the West. If their prophecies come true, this year's World's Series trip will be a "corking" one for the winners to take. But no matter where the games may be held, the American's party will be there.

YOU WILL FIND THE NOMINATION BLANK IN THE LOWER CORNER OF THIS ANNOUNCEMENT. Fill it in and send it in at once. Then turn to Page 2, where you will find the voting coupon which will mean so much to you if you will take advantage of this opportunity.

BIKERS READY FOR 30-MILE RACE

The thirty-mile all-American motor-paced race, which was postponed Saturday night on account of a wet track, will be run off at the Revere cycle track on Wednesday night. The same riders will start in this event. They are Elmer Collins of Lynn, George Wiley of Syracuse, N. Y., and Clarence Carman, the national middle distance champion, who hails from Jamaica, L. I.

In addition to the above named event, there will be a special amateur tandem handicap race and the regular card of professional and amateur contests.

While all the entrants in the motor-paced race are in good condition, they welcomed the layover, as it will give them more time to get into shape for what promises to be one of the closest struggles of the season.

Wiley was keenly disappointed over his defeat by Victor Linart at the beach oval Friday night, but he believes that he will get more glory out of a victory over Collins since the latter is the only rider that has defeated Linart this season.

The news of Collins' win over Linart at New York last week was indeed a pleasant surprise for the local "fans," as he is practically the only motor-paced rider left to uphold the prestige of Boston and New England.

In spite of the fact that Wiley and Collins are going at top speed, Carman, too, must be figured as a strong factor in Wednesday night's event. Realizing that the time is nearing when he must defend his title, the champion has been doing a little secret work with the result that he broke his own world's record for twenty-five miles in a practice bout at Sheepshead Bay, New York, only last week.

Seek Fort Strong Game.

The South Boston Athletics are seeking a game with Fort Strong. The peninsular team defeated Fort Banks Saturday, 9 to 7. Esterhill's pitching being the feature of the tussle. Address Allen Hanson, No. 54 Woodward street, South Boston.

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the tenth of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the Boston AMERICAN by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the AMERICAN on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

A Simple Exercise That Will Vastly Benefit Our Digestion.

Ajax, according to his biographer, Homer, was the strongest of the Greek heroes who besieged Troy, and also the stupidest. Ever since his time, there have been strong men without much intellect to speak of.

Nevertheless, good brains are an important aid in the acquisition of strength and health and you will find, nowadays, that most of our good athletes are also persons of sound sense. And at the seige of Troy, Achilles, Ulysses, and probably Hector, could have defeated Ajax in a stand-up fight, because they knew more in a minute than he did in his lifetime.

Brains, and imagination likewise, are available capital to an athlete: mens sana in corpore sano is the phrase; but if a sound body keeps the mind sound, it is no less true that an active brain and a lively imagination can do a great deal toward creating vigorous muscles and a healthy set of interior organs—which are what we are after.

During your exercises, then, fix your thoughts upon the act you are performing, and see in your imagination, with the mind's eye, its effect upon that part of your body which it is meant to improve. As I have said, a little familiarity with anatomy will help you in this particular. As you stretch your arms above your head, for instance, note and feel how it tenses the biceps, the triceps, the pectorals, the deltoid, and the latissimus dorsi. If you are doing right—if you are lifting up the whole torso from the hips to its utmost limit—you will perceive the strain also in the muscles at the sides of the waist, and in the small of the back. A capital exercise, this, and it is the first which you should practice in the series which I shall recommend to you.

Imagine that there is a point in the ceiling (or if that be too high, imagine a point in the air above you); just out of reach of your greatest effort, while standing flat on your feet. It is your business, though you cannot reach that point, to strive most heroically to do so. Go at it hard enough, and may be you can reach it. Make the effort first with one hand and arm, then with the other, saving the two up and down against each other, but being careful to keep both elbows as nearly straight as possible. Put all the gumption there is in you into the thing, and observe, as you go on, that you are utting a lot of new work into the joint of your shoulder, as if you were going to pull it out of the socket.

That is an important feature of the exercise. Every joint of your body ought to be free and flexible, and you must study out ways in which to bring a pull upon them. Many gymnasium exercises will do this, but there is danger that the apparatus will pull too hard or too suddenly, and actually produce a sprain or a lesion. But when you have nothing solider than the air to get hold of, all risk of that sort is out of the question.

Make this movement twenty times. You can do it and you never need do it oftener than twenty. For though you will get much stronger than you are now, after a while, you will in consequence be able to bring a stronger stress to the movement, and it will tire you just as much, in proportion to your increased strength, as it did at first.

Now, if you could look inside your body, and see what a commotion this exercise is producing in your entrails, you would understand its value for digestion and attendant processes. An X-ray moving photograph would show you, but as that is difficult to arrange, use your imagination, and the result will be just as beneficial.

Alley's ALE

Webster says that temperance means, "restrained or moderate indulgence." So carelessly has this word been handled that many people believe that temperance consists of total abstinence from the use of alcoholic beverages and a firm belief in the doctrine of prohibition.

MASSACHUSETTS BREWERIES COMPANY

HARVARD CREWS ENJOY REST DAY

HARVARD TRAINING QUARTERS, Red Top, Ct., June 21.—The usual Sunday-like quietness prevailed here, but that did not affect the spirit of the camp and the same enthusiasm that was born Saturday as a result of the splendid time one indulged in by Harvard was in no way disturbed. The members of the varsity and the freshman crews left here early in the morning on a day's outing.

About 9 o'clock the members of the first and second crews went down to New London, where they boarded the schooner yacht Vagrant, owned by Harold S. Vanderbilt. They were then taken to Long Island Sound, where they spent the day. The usual program was followed and a few additions were made to it. The members of the crews were allowed two dives from the vessel and practically all of them availed themselves of the offering. They disported themselves like denizens of the deep and it required a bit of urging to recall some of the boys. Last Sunday the crews were taken on board Captain Sachta and the shift to a sailing boat was very much appreciated. It was a chance that appealed to them, and it can be truthfully said that the trip equalled any of those engaged in during past seasons.

The freshmen were again entertained on board Lars Anderson's house-boat Hexagon, and it goes without saying that they were royally entertained. They took practically the same trip as the varsity.

The outing refreshed the members of the first varsity after their hard time of Saturday in the time trial, and they were feeling like two-year-olds.

It has been planned to have a band concert here on Wednesday night at the varsity quarters. A band has been engaged and it is planned to make the concert and gathering serve a two-fold purpose. Besides affording entertainment to the crew men here it is also intended to assist in celebrating the prospective baseball victory over Eli at Cambridge.

Coach Wray, who was landed in Boston, returned Dr. Young, the crew physician, who also visited Boston during the week end, has also returned and for the remainder of the week will devote every minute of his time to the crews.

"Solar Plexus" an Accident

It is a curious fact that almost every knockout blow used by a ring fighter has been discovered by accident.

The way these blows were found to be vital forms the very interesting chapter of Jess Willard's autobiography which appears in the AMERICAN tomorrow.

Willard has "invented" one of these blows himself and he tells about that, too. Says he don't know how it happened, it just happened—and the other fellow went to sleep. He uses that blow now.

BRITTON-GLOVER MEET TOMORROW

By JACK CONWAY.

JACK BRITTON and Mike Glover, one of our best little welter weights, are fit for their twelve-round tussle which will be staged at the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night. Both boxers declare that they have not exercised any difficulty in making weight. They add that they will enter the ring at the Arena properly trained to a fine edge and that when the dear old chimes sound at the opening of the first round neither will be found under.

The bout has been advertised as the welterweight championship of the world. The welterweight championship is a grand old institution, but the title has not been worth two bad last week. The only thing it reminds of the institution is pleasant memories.

It is a long time since we have had a really championship class welterweight bout. Honey Mellody, Jimmy Hardy and "Mike" Twin Sullivan were the last of the old guard to whom there was a great desire and accomplished many remarkable feats within the bonds ropes.

THERE has not been a recognized king of the welterweight division for some time. The last to proclaim the management of the A. A. A. in arranging a series of contests which it hopes will clear up the welterweight division and find a real champion at the head of the full-round glove game.

The first bout of this series was between Mike Glover and Matt Wells, the South Boston boxer composed of the Englishman, who afterwards won the welterweight championship of Australia. Glover was then signed to exchange blows with Britton. The latter is a clever boxer for his size, as his mark a grand record in the ring during the past few years.

BRITTON formerly possessed with the lightweight, but no lies out grows that class. His last big fight with the 133-pounders was with Joe Orleans a couple of years ago. Charley White of Chicago was Britton's opponent. Jack fought his usual clever battle while he rocked White with slashing left and right hand blows. The result was that White was forced to quit in the eighteenth round, when he was helpless.

BRITTON is still able to reduce to 135 pounds, but Freddy Welsh, Charley White, "Young" Shugrue and the rest of the real lightweights would be foolish to clash with Britton at this poundage, as they would be almost certain to be beaten. Jimmy Morgan's champion is one of the few present day boxers who are clever and who are also able to land a knockout blow.

GLOVER is not worrying a great deal about tomorrow's bout. He has already one victory to his credit over Britton and believes he will be able to put over another win at the Atlas Club.

Considerable interest is also being shown in the semi-final bout or preliminary, which will be between "Bat" Brown and "Young" Jasper. There will also be a couple of six-round preliminaries.

THERE is not anything new in regard to a bout between Matty Baldwin and Charley White. White is willing to fight Baldwin here, but the Atlas A. A. officials are of the opinion that the Charlestown boxer's terms are unreasonable. Baldwin has been anxious to box White since the Chicago lightweight, several of such a big stir in local boxing circles. Matty is a gallant little fighter, but he believes that he would be acting wisely if he passed up White and went after easier game. There are plenty of lightweights and heavy featherweights who would make an attractive card if pitted against Baldwin. Joe Mandot, Johnny Kilbane, Joe Rivers and Leach Cross are a few shining examples.

Gallant and Rivers to Clash at Atlas

Joe Rivers, the Mexican lightweight, and Albert Gallant of Chelsea have been matched for a 12-round bout to be staged in the Atlas A. A. on the night of July 9.

Bout for Wood.

Farmer Hayes of Chicago and Bill Wood of Fall River will meet in a 12-round bout at the Tuileries Park A. A. on the night of June 25.

By Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard

THAT so great and conservative a man as Barclay should lend the promise of his backing to the doctrines and tenets of Celestia aroused extraordinary interest all over the country, and even in England and on the Continent.

In New York Barclay was not only a financial but a social leader. Once a year he gave a great ball, to which everybody who was invited went, unless sickness or some other major case had laid them by the heels. But it is not here a question of Barclay's great ball. Those who looked lovelily at him or up to him in a social way felt that he had set the stamp of approval on the girl from Heaven, and burned to know her.

Celestia was showered with invitations, most of which she declined. But she did not decline them all. It was her duty, she felt, to convert to her cause all sorts and conditions of men and women, the man who had been born with a golden spoon in his mouth and the man who had been raised with a revolver in his hip-pocket.

Now, although Celestia moved on a calm level of democracy, loving almost all men alike, she found in the ways and houses of the rich more opportunities to be amused and joyous than in the houses of the poor. If the rich were worthless as a class, she had to admit their cleverness in concealing it. And many of them she could not but believe were in love with righteousness. They feted her and made much of her.

She was asked to speak in the ballroom of a great house overlooking Central Park. The invitation to do so was instigated by Mary Blackstone, but Celestia did not know this, and the name signed to the note of invitation was one which tempted her to accept. It was a name which above all others stood, in the opinion of the man in the street, for all that is richest and most foolish.

To this function Tommy Barclay was among those invited tall part of Mary Blackstone's plan), but though he yearned to be wherever Celestia was, in spite of their latest quarrel, he was too busy tramping the streets of New York in search of a job to accept. Mary had hoped that among those to the manner born, Celestia in spite of her genuine good looks and magnetic voice, would appear insignificant if not impossible. She was doomed to disappointment.

Celestia, abandoning for the occasion her work-girl dress, and assuming once more that graceful flowing white garment in which she was first seen (outside of heaven) not only set a new standard of beauty, but started a new fashion in dress, and a kettle-ful of jealousy among the women.

At the end of the long ballroom —a great space of mirrors, and silk, brocaded with garlands, flowers overflowing baskets and cupids—was a platform for musicians. Upon this, to a great assemblage of fashionable men and women, all talking at once, Celestia appeared suddenly—and there was silence.

The lovely low-browed face crowned with the strong dark hair, the steady kind, unfathomable eyes were like a command that had to be obeyed.

Celestia never began at the beginning of a speech. She never started by explaining, or arguing, at being asked to speak, or astonishment at perceiving so many upturned faces. Nor did she start by saying what she was going to talk about when she really did get started.

At the point where Celestia began another sound would have been half through. She plunged right into the heart of things with a compelling sweetness and seriousness that were irresistible.

Gestures, as a rule, are not to illuminate what is being said, but either to draw attention from the awkwardness and lack of poise of the speaker, or as an outlet to a superfluous energy for which there is no room in the channels of speech.

For the most part Celestia stood with her hands lightly clasped behind her back. She rarely made a gesture of any sort, and never a gesture which for one moment drew attention from her words, her voice, or, indeed, her beauty. In that crowd of gilded listeners only one heart and understanding was unmoved.

Mary Blackstone had an inkling of the secrets concerning Celestia. She knew that her own father would not profess to believe a voice that had suddenly risen among the people unless it was to his interest to do so.

And when not only her father professed belief but the man to whom she was engaged and such colossi of the business world as Barclay and Stuvtevant, Mary, in the telling American phrase, "began to smell a rat."

If it was to their advantage to believe it was also to hers. Nevertheless, Celestia's arguments and mannerism only served to soften Mary's understanding into opposition. For it is almost an axiom that to those whom we hate we are never of easy persuasion.

But the other hearts in that audience went out to Celestia. She gathered hearts as Ellen Terry used to, as Mme. Duse . And as for the minds in that audience, for there actually were minds, and sound ones, these felt the privilege of having been among the first to realize that a new day might very well be about to dawn upon a dark world.

Men and women there were present who highly resolved that never, never would they do so and so again. Some kept their resolutions for several days; others for long periods of time. Merely the intention of living more wisely and more righteously is not perhaps enough, but God knows it is something.

She finished speaking, her hands dropped to her sides, and her eyes, well, though they had been open all along, they seemed to open, and she looked almost frightened and puzzled. A roar of applause rose and in the back of the room, Professor Stilliter, who had been under a great strain, wiped the perspiration from his brow.

Celestia came down from the platform very shyly, and the men began to crowd about her and to shake her hand. They crowded about to tell her that they believed her, that her cause was theirs, that when the time came she could count upon them.

"But it won't be easy," she smiled. "It's a greater house than this that we have to clean. A hundred years of mistaken laws and customs are not to be swept aside in a day. So, indeed, I shall need your service and your backing and your votes."

Celestia's hostess took possession of her and women forced their way among the men in order to look closer at the simple Greek dress which, worn as Celestia wore it, so put to shame their own bare arms and shoulders and clrardish costumes. Few men are good witnesses of anything, but many women with the tail of an eye can take away with them not only the material and effect of a costume but the way it was made. Among the women present, Celestia was being copied right and left.

What's in a Name?

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

IF WE may judge by the number of opprobrious nicknames given to it, the cockroach is the most detested insect on the face of the earth. The species known as the German roach (called in New York the Croton bug) seems to be more hated than any other. Very amusing are the popular designations of this insect which have been collected in a circular of the Bureau of Entomology by C. L. Marlatt. Here are some of them.

In northern Germany these roaches are called "Schwaben," (meaning South Germans), and in southern Germany they are in retaliation called "Prussians." In eastern Germany they are called "Russians," and in western Germany "Frenchmen." They have also been nicknamed "Spaniards" and "Danes," by the inhabitants of adjacent countries. They get their name of Croton bugs because it was that there species first attracted attention in America at the time of the completion of the Croton aqueduct and water system. They promptly seized the advantages afforded for the invasion of houses by the innumerable waterpipes, and established themselves at once in every kitchen and pantry.

The race of the cockroach is one of the most venerable in the insect world. More than that, it is one which, through long geological ages, has retained, with remarkable fidelity, the racial characteristics of the remotest ancestors. Fossil cockroaches found in the strata of the carboniferous age, the age when the strange plants that formed our coal beds flourished, look so much like those of today that one is tempted to step on them. On the score of priority or originality the cockroach might reproachfully say to the indignant housewife who sweeps it into the dustpan, "Spare my murderous hand! My rights here antedate yours by twenty million years!"

The story that the rocks tell about the ancient empire of the cockroaches is very impressive. The climate of the carboniferous age was warm and moist, a condition which admirably suited these insects, and, as a consequence, they then flourished as they have never done since. They were so numerous that it has been suggested that the carboniferous, coal, age might, with equal propriety, be called the age of cockroaches. By mere force of numbers they appear to have taken the lead, although they had as contemporaries the biggest insects that ever existed, such as a Phasma (phantom), with a body a foot long, and a spread of wings not less than two feet and a quarter!

Cockroaches have pestered man with their constant company in his dwellings from the remotest times. While some species, like the Croton bugs, have been introduced into America from the Old World, other species already existed here when the white man came, and the Indians had trouble enough with them. They are great travelers, going all over the world in ships. In fact, ships are their favorite homes. The German roach possesses also the migratory instinct on land, and sometimes marches in bodies at night, to take possession of houses previously free from its presence.

In South America there is a large brown cockroach which attacks sleepers in their beds. H. H. Smith, the naturalist, tells this story of what happened to him there: "In the upper Paraguay River, on the plains of Chaco, where we were staying there were nearly a dozen children, and every one of them had their eyelashes, many of them bitten off by cockroaches. They were bitten off irregularly, in some cases quite close to the eyelid. As no one was confined to children, I suppose, because they are heavy sleepers and do not disturb the insects at work. My wife and I sometimes brushed cockroaches from our faces at night. The cockroaches also bite off bits of the toenails. Organdie curtains which encourage the large house spiders because they tend to rid the house of other insect pests."

Here is another very curious fact pertaining to cockroaches. One of their deadliest enemies is a species of ichneumon fly (Evania appendigaster). Its method of attack is by capsules of the roaches. But, strange to say, another species of Ichneumon fly, (Entedon hagenow), in a similar manner, destroys the Evania, and thus indirectly befriends the roaches! Tree frogs are great devourers of cockroaches, and if a few of them get into a roach-infested room over night, they will, it is said, rid it of the pests. One of the most effective methods of getting rid of cockroaches, according to the government entomologists, is to sprinkle the premises with commercial sodium fluorid, either pure, or diluted with powdered gympsum, or flour. With a "dust gun," or blower, the powder can be forced into their hiding places.

Their Married Life

Helen Has an Argument With the Grocer

Copyright, 1915, International News Service

HELEN sat with a little account book before her, a pencil in her mouth and a forehead much wrinkled in an effort to balance properly. The monthly accounts were always a hardship to Helen, who hated figures, but she had determined to manage as economically as possible and noted faithfully with her book every time the bills came in.

She had the month's grocery bill before her. It seemed almost impossible that with such a small family so many things were necessary. When had they eaten all that fruit, and surely they had never eaten canned lobster. Helen thought faithfully, but could not recall any time that she had purchased canned lobster.

For one thing, Warren did not approve of canned meats or fish, and, besides, as she scanned the bill she discovered that there were more items of the same kind. Several cans of lobster, sardines and some expensive cheese.

Nora had gone out and had taken Winifred. Helen was beginning to worry about Winifred. She had looked paler for several days, and Helen dreaded the hot weather. She wondered if Warren would approve of her taking Winifred away somewhere for the Summer. She would be perfectly satisfied if they could go anywhere, just so long as it was cool and comfortable. Last year she had gone to Maine with Warren on his vacation, but the two weeks were all that she had taken, Winifred had not been with them, and this year it was different.

Helen had made a suggestion regarded home parcels to save a few pennies. She had thought that it did not pay. Most of the stores where the price was less had fewer opportunities to deliver, and it was a nuisance.

The streets seemed hot and the children more prolific than ever. Helen felt a little uncomfortable as she noticed several people look at her closely. She had gone out without a hat, thinking it too hot to bother with one, and as her dress was charming it made her look more conspicuous than she wished.

She reached the store at last and, hot in hand, waited for some one to come up and ask what she wanted. The store was well ventilated with the odor of fresh green vegetables and fruit. Vaguely Helen remembered the wharf at Colon and the smell of bananas and grain. She would never smell bananas again without thinking of that morning three years ago in the tropics. Some one came up to her at that moment and asked what she wanted, and Helen proffered her bill and asked what the items meant.

"I am sure I never bought them," she said, following the man to the desk, where he produced his book and proceeded to look up the contested items.

Helen had traded there for some time, and the man was obsequious and evidently ready to rectify any mistake.

"You did not send anyone else to the store, did you, Mrs. Curtis?" he said. "This first item is plainly marked in the book. Look for yourself."

Helen satisfied herself that the man was speaking the truth. She had had a lurking feeling when she had come out that something was not quite right. It did not seem likely that so many mistakes would be made, and yet who could have bought the articles?

Helen was plainly puzzled, and decided to telephone home. Perhaps Nora had come in and would know about it. She stepped over to the telephone and a moment later had Nora on the wire.

"Nora, I am down at the fruit store. Do you know anything about any lobster charged on the bill? Or sardines?"

Nora denied any knowledge, as Helen was sure she would. She would have suspected herself aoonar than Nora.

"There must be some mistake," said Helen positively. "My maid did not purchase them, and I am sure I did not."

The man had discovered the other articles plainly marked and seemed a little uncertain as to how to proceed.

"I'll let it go for a day or so," said Helen, finally. "You will surely find out the mistake and you can let me know." She had felt like adding something about carelessness, but decided not to, in case she was to blame in any way.

At home she questioned Nora closely, showing her the bill, and the two tried to think out a possible solution to the puzzle. Altogether the bill came to over three dollars for the things that Helen was sure she had not bought. It was too much to pay for principle's sake, if nothing else, when she was sure that she had never bought them.

Warren's key to the latch came in the midst of the discussion, and Helen flew out to meet him. Nora called her the next moment, and she left him to hurry to the telephone.

"Oh, you did, well I was sure you would. Yes, of course, the two names are alike. All right, fix up the bill and send it in again. Please be careful next time."

Well, that was over at least.

"Yes, dear, the bill at the fruit store," she said in response to Warren's inquiry. "Lobster and things on the bill that I never bought."

"You'll never have any trouble like that if you would stop this infernal charging," said Warren unsympathetically. Some day you'll wake up to the fact that I was right, but I won't get any credit for it."

Another incident in this interesting series will appear on this page soon.

The Fun of Struggling

By ANN LISLE.

"BETTER to fight and fall
than never to strive.
Better to suffer than to know no cares.
It is enough that I am now alive—
Death is not bitter to the man who dares."

Life at its best is always a struggle. Life is a problem given to you and me for our individual solution. No one can work it out for us, though many may help, but our own living of our lives constitutes our solution of our problem. Why not make your answer a sum total of achievement?

To have the great and worth while things of life we must fight to win, and having won we must still fight to hold. A victory over unfavorable circumstances and conditions is splendid. But the mere willingness and moral stamina to "put up a fight" is a big and worth while thing.

There is a certain victory in the mere throwing off of sloth and laziness and girding yourself for the fray. The stages of success are three—first the energy to strive; second, the firmness to go on striving in the face of seeming failure; and third, the courage and wisdom to turn the fight to victory.

Don't be unhappy if you are born to hampering conditions. That gives you a chance to gain strength and to win at last glorious victory over environment and your own self.

If we want the great things of life we must indeed fight to win . . . and never cease fighting to retain. But this is not hardship. Rather it is that which gives dignity to life. What a fine tingle of hope for conquest a soldier fighting for a forlorn hope feels as he turns the tide. Be such a soldier. It will win for you a magnificent feeling of glow as you become conscious that you are gaining dominion over difficulty.

The blood of your purpose will become red with the live corpuscles of your own making. Your character will stand firm and strong as you harden its backbone! Fight! It is a glorious thing. But fight for the righteous cause of growth and strength and understanding.

The Irony of Fate

He'd defied the floods of Pluvius, scaled the crater of Vesuvius,
Had triumphed over fevers in the Jungles lone and lorn.
He had fought the foe in Russia,
Belgium, Turkey, France and Prussia,
And had danced the turkey trot
upon the dizzy Matterhorn.
He had braved a thousand dangers
in the land of savage strangers—
War and famine, fire and tempest,
epidemics and the fates;
But yesterday at 5 (and it's lucky he's alive)
He was hurt in a collision with a boy on roller skates.

Zoe---The Story of a Great Love

By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN

"I'LL bet you anything you like, Mr. Crawley, she's been worrying her dear little self all to pieces because I've been away. Ah, well, I shall soon put that all right! Well, so long, sonny!" He put out his hand as Crawley mechanically alighted from the motor car.

Crawley took the outstretched hand and tried again to speak; but the effort was in vain.

"I'll tell Di you came with me," said Brooke. "I'll ring you up later. Goodby.

The great car sprang forward. Noel Crawley stood alone on the pavement.

"She's not back yet?" exclaimed Brooke.

"No, sir," said the hotel servant. "Her ladyship has not been back."

"But didn't she sleep here?"

"No, sir."

"Any letters?"

"Your man has them all, sir."

"Thanks!" grunted Sir Godfrey Brooke, and went up to his private suite.

Louise Berenger, Lady Brooke's maid, was the first person he met.

"Where's Collier?" he asked.

Collier appeared almost before the sharp, incisive question was enunciated.

"Where is—is her ladyship?"

"We don't know, sir," answered Louise Berenger and Collier in one and the same breath.

Brooke's brows contracted.

"Surely," he said "there is some message?"

"None, sir, that I know of," answered Collier nervously.

"And you!" queried Brooke, fixing a keen and penetrating glance upon Berenger.

"I know nothing, m'sieur. I am greatly troubled and anxious. But we thought that you, m'sieur, would be sure to know."

"But I don't know," replied Brooke, with unusual childish irritability and disappointment.

"There is nothing, sir," he said, ringing off.

"Have you tried both clubs?"

"Yes, sir."

"Humph. That seems strange! Are you quite sure—"

Collier did not feel called upon to answer the needless question. Of course he was quite sure. He knew what he was doing.

A quick observer of physiognomy might have seen Brooke's grim, strong face pale a little and a startled look come into his blue, dog-like eyes.

"I'm going out now," he said to the man. "I do not expect to be long. Telephone to the City and say I shall not be down today and that anyone who wants to see me must come up here. I shall probably lunch here. Tell Mr. Coleman to come round about three and attend to these letters."

Mr. Coleman was Brooke's private secretary.

"Very good, sir," said the man. "Drive as hard as you like to Bob Queen's Gate," said Brooke to the driver of a taxicab five minutes later.

The man took him at his word, with the result that a quarter of an hour later Brooke stood on the steps of No. 300 Brooke Mews, asking a German waiter whether Mrs. Melhuish was at home.

But Mrs. Melhuish was not at home; she was not even in London.

"Mrs. Melhuish," said the German, "is staying at Bournemouth. She went away last week and will not be back for a month."

Brooke then remembered vaguely that he had heard something about this from his wife several days ago.

"Can you give me the club at once, Bournemouth?" he asked eagerly.

The waiter retired and returned with the required information.

"The Firlands, Branksome Wood road, care of Lady Walkington," he noted on his cuff, gave the man half a crown and returned to his waiting cab.

"The nearest telegraph office," he said.

"Is Diana with you?" he wired a few minutes later. "If not, when did you last hear from her? Wire reply to Savoy—Godfrey Brooke."

He paid for the cab and drove back to the hotel and lunched, or tried to do so, for as a matter of fact, he was beginning to feel extremely nervous.

ROME, June 21.—Fresh attacks against the Austrian positions defending Gradisca on the north are being made by the Italians from Plava, which they took by storm after a brilliant charge.

Plava is about five miles north of Gradisca, on the Isonzo river. Occupation of the heights on the eastern banks of the river at that point gives the Italians a tremendous advantage in their efforts to take Gradisca.

Artillery duels are reported from the Tyrolese, Trent and Carnic Alps despite foggy weather and rain storms.

"On the Isonzo and Corinthian fronts the enemy shelled our positions without result.

FRENCH RETAIN TRENCHES TAKEN FROM THE GERMANS

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, June 21.—Hard fighting has again developed in the Woevre district.

Despite the heaviest possible counter attacks by the Germans the French were able to keep the two trenches which they had captured at Calonne, on the heights of the Meuse, yesterday.

All the trenches taken by the French in Lorraine were filled up with dead bodies, evidence of the fierceness of the fighting in that district.

In order to protect himself from our coast batteries the enemy changed his positions several times. He was also shelled by German batteries."

Moscow Anti-German Rioters Liquor-Mad

PETROGRAD, June 21.—Moscow suffered damage to the extent of 220,000,000 during the recent anti-German demonstrations in which nearly 500 stores and factories and more than 200 private houses were totally wrecked.

The infuriated mobs turned the city into wild disorder, according to eye witnesses. The rioters, heated with liquor, which they found in the demolished wine stores, became reckless in their pillaging, setting fire to and destroying many stores and apartments the owners of which were Russians. Of the total number of buildings destroyed only 112 belonged to Austro-German subjects.

THE MONIE COMPANY,

Detroit, Mich.,
June 10, 1915.

Editor Boston American, Hearst Square, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:

We note the closings of Mother's Day to June 30th. We are very glad of this, as we understand that it's going to give us an opportunity to add another ton and a half truck to this work, and also several of our very experienced men, therefore, instead of one ton and a half trucks we will be loaded with MONIE, together with what we shipped in June, we shall also have a very large number of men as attendants.

We shall be glad to cooperate with you in this very worthy charity in any and every way we possibly can.

Reports of our representatives who were on the grounds last year firmly impressed us that this is one of the most worthy undertakings and that the manner in which you conducted the affair was well worthy of the great newspaper you represent.

As further evidence of our intentions to see that your guests get every attention, the MONIE COMPANY is able to give with its immense resources. We have placed an additional order, solely for this occasion, for fifty thousand (50,000) paper military caps, and have increased our cooling facilities, etc., to meet the needs of the enormous crowds that we have to handle in so short a period of time.

We shall not be surprised if this year we serve sixty tons and glasses during the time our guests are enjoying themselves at Nantasket.

No anxious are we that the mothers and children shall have every benefit which we are able to extend to them through you, who are graciously handling this thing without expense to them, that if you can think how, in any manner, we can do more than we have set out to do, you have but to command us.

Sincerely yours,
THE MONIE COMPANY.

HAS NOTHING BUT WORDS OF PRAISE

Dr. J. Slack, Massachusetts Ave. Specialist, Feels Better Than for Years.

There is absolutely no necessity for many persons incapacitated from enjoying health, happiness and their regular occupations, if the cause is ruled out. Many people are cured of the time the patient first realizes that something is wrong. Dr. J. Slack, whose office is at 1000 Massachusetts ave., Boston, has had more than 30 years' experience in the treatment of chronic diseases, and has made a specialty of the ailments of men and women. He has a system of treatment that is unfailing in its results. Dr. Slack has lived in this city for 25 years. He says:

"I had suffered from stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion and kidney trouble for fifteen years. My food would ferment and sour, thus causing gas to form, then belching up sour water acid and burning sensation. I was afraid to eat, often that I went four days without eating anything. I took medicine and suffered great pain after I did eat, and I could not sleep. I also had headaches, dizzy spells and was very nervous and restless with the gas pressure around my heart. Now I can say for publication that, after I took One free dose of your medicine I commenced to get well, and I can eat anything, and I feel agreeable with me. I suffer no more pains and have no more gas belching. I am simply feeling better than I have in years."

Blood Risings Begin A Mere Speck

Stop Them From Growing Large and Dangerous.

Nearly everyone who uses S. S. S. for the blood trouble it cured who went through untold suffering as the result of a mere pimple or small sore on the skin. A host of people did not realize, until too late, what may result from a slight skin abrasion. But their records of thousands of lives S. S. S., and in almost every village and hamlet, every neighborhood a walking monument is someone who will tell you how S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, restored his health.

It is a most interesting fact that this remarkable blood purifier is made entirely of the blood in a manner that excites curious minds.

But it acts in accordance with accepted physiological laws and yet its effect is almost beyond belief. Roots and herbs are welded by such drugs as mercury, calomel, arsenic, iodide of potash and other baneful influences which all the world bears silent testimony to their destructive tendencies.

S. S. S. is indeed a nature's tribute to what we need and it is worthy of note that in almost any drug store throughout the country you will find it regularly in stock. Get a bottle today. And if you believe yours is a peculiar case, write to the Medical Adviser of the Swift Specific Co., 100 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Our word for it, he is one of Georgia's accredited specialists, retired from active practice by reason of his name and of his recognized ability.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

What Is the Matter with Men's Shirts?

Why Do Scientists, Why Does Edison Neglect the Great Problem?

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

At some stage in the sorrowful pilgrimage of humanity somebody invented, to punish man, the shirt that he wears.

Nobody has tried to free the inferior half of the human race from shirt slavery and shirt deficiencies.

Occasionally and alone WE have feebly protested in the name of humanity.

For instance, you innocently send your shirt to the laundry, and it comes back containing not fewer than thirteen pins. You pick out twelve and sit down on the thirteenth.

Shirts are made and worn with collars so tight as to cause premature baldness. The tight collars also cause more serious disorders. They press upon the great blood vessels that run to and from the brain—circulation there ought to be uninterrupted.

And they press upon the pneumogastric nerve, the most important of all the nerves in the body—so important that nature hides it away beneath the great blood vessel on the side of your neck.

Today a discouraged reader sends an appeal in plain, vigorous English. We cannot refuse to print it, although we do not blame the "shirtmakers." They are victims of conditions, as the bootmakers used to be in China. The Chinese bootmakers probably hated to manufacture those dreadful little shoes into which the women's feet had to be squeezed, but the demand compelled them. Probably our shirtmakers hate to manufacture the affliction that curses us, but they MUST.

Here is the protest of our reader:

"Pitch into the shirtmakers and make them cut down the sleeve lengths to the end of the cuff to thirty inches, the limit of 70 per cent. of men. The shortest length made is thirty-four inches.

"We won't wear silk shirts because the perspiration won't dry out while on the person.

"We won't wear soft cuffs because they perspire out at once.

"We will only wear plain bosoms, because fluted types cost more to launder."

This pitiful complaint is only too just. Any man who ever bought a shirt ready made always had to get somebody to take a tuck in the sleeve, losing enough material to make a pretty good shirt for a small baby.

Men always wear the new shirts for a long time with the cuffs hanging down over their finger tips, then they have the tucks made when it is too late and the shirt is about worn out.

One curse of the shirt is that it is ALL worn out when one-eighth of an inch is worn. The shirt wears around the edge of the cuff, then it must be thrown away. Science hasn't solved the problem of fixing that.

Perhaps the shirtmakers could make a cuff finished, in three different places.

There might be the REGULAR end of the shirt cuff, then half an inch back ANOTHER end, then half an inch farther back ANOTHER end. As each end wore it could be neatly cut off with a pair of scissors and the shirt could continue its career. This is NOT patented.

Then, consider the tail of the shirt.

Why should man be put into a garment that has two tails, one in front and one behind, and both unnecessary?

Space and custom forbid describing the useless worries which these things inflict. Happy the little boy, with his little waist, buttoned onto his little trousers. Ah, well for him if he could stay a boy and not grow up into shirts.

Now we ask this question bluntly:

Why does not somebody manufacture a shirt for men that will stop at the waist, and a shirt that will have a soft collar that will not squeeze the pneumogastric nerve, or make him look as though he had fallen into a rainbarrel, and a shirt with the tips of the cuffs, bound with some resisting substance that won't wear out, or with several "tips" stitched into the cuff?

And give us, above all, a shirt with straps and buckles all around it. Not fewer than fifteen or sixteen buckles, so that the man who runs the laundry can buckle your shirt together and not endanger your life by putting in pins that may carry the germs of tetanus in their points?

That is all for today, but we know that we shall have to write about shirts again.

PRAISES HAWTHORNE ARTICLES

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Those articles by Julian Hawthorne, published in the Sunday AMERICAN, giving a descriptive picture in writing of Harvard, Concord and other places of historic interest, are most interesting to read in that they bring to life the immortals of a past that it is well for Americans to ponder over, and places dear to our sentimental press hereabouts.

PATRIOTIC EDITORIALS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Please accept my sincere thanks for your very, very able but much more honest and patriotic editorials. Such articles can only be written at such crises as this and come from the heart and soul of a well-intentioned man, and should be read by every person in the land, notably the majority of the proprietors of the

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

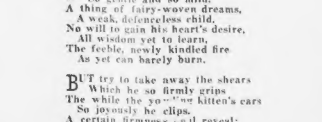
The Baby

HE'S just a little helpless mite,
Whose tender, trusting smile
And coos of rapturous delight
Are innocent of guile.
Too frail as yet to walk alone,
His little tongue untaught
To make his baby wishes known
Or tell his tiniest thought.

BUT pluck him from the cellar floor
Where eager and alert
He smears his little person o'er
With soot and grime and dirt.
And for what seems an hour or two
The imp will hold his breath
Until his face is fairly blue
And you're half scared to death!

SO soft and flower-like he seems,
So gentle and so mild,
A thing of fairy-woven dreams,
A weak, defenceless child,
No will to gain his heart's desire,
All wisdom yet to learn,
The feeble, newly kindled fire
As yet can barely burn.

BUT try to take away the shears
Which he so firmly grips
The while the yo—ne kitten's ears
So joyously he clips.
A certain firmness seal reveal;
For on the rug he'll drop
And stiffen like a frozen eel,
And scream until you stop!



Uncalled for Meddling

Under the Chinese medical system a man while he's well pays his doctor and ceases to pay him when he falls ill. And yet the Rockefeller foundation is trying to Americanize the Chinese medical system.

He Looks Bigger Than That in the Subway

"Might one be pardoned" begins Irvin Cobb in a newspaper letter. What does he mean—one?

The Hobo

They lock him up in hoosh-gows,
They kick him off of trains,
The growling bulldog chases him
Along the country lanes.
The hours he has for sleeping
He snatches on the sly,
The very children hoot at him
When he goes halting by.
His shoes don't hold together,
His clothes are frayed and old.
When other men are snug and warm
He shivers with the cold.
But in the hidden by-ways,
Where such as he is lurk,
He thanks whatever gods are his—
Because he need not work.

Speeding Up

But It Isn't Working Out

Mr. Bonaparte's theory that the way to end a fight is to knock the other fellow down would be more generally accepted if all Europe hadn't been trying it for a year with very indifferent success.

Real Josephean Economy

The Lusitania was run at slow speed to save money. Which is much the same thing as keeping the navy down to its present proportions because it costs so much to build battleships.

Helpful Hint

If there's anything in a name, instead of sending Colonel House to Germany, the President should have sent Vernon Castle.

The least the Post can do to square himself is to send the Wilson grandchildren a season pass to his Chautauqua shows.

Still, They Use Better Stuff Than Their Own

Not Original

Not wishing any reflections on the girl who has invented a gown that can be worn by any woman anywhere, we merely wish to remark that, considering the taste of her time, Eve inside the salon invention some 6,000 years ago.

Is Bryan a Safer Guide Than George Washington?

"We not only do not need additional preparation, but we are fortunate in not having it."—William Jennings Bryan in a statement issued last week.

Autograph letter of our first President and wisest statesman, and greatest soldier of his time—his admonition to Congress vital in 1915 as in 1780:

Headquarters, near Passaic Falls, October 18, 1780.

I AM religiously persuaded that the duration of the war and the greatest part of the misfortunes and perplexities we have hitherto experienced are chiefly to be attributed to the system of temporary enlistments.

Had we in the commencement raised an Army for the War, such as was within the reach of the abilities of these States to raise, and maintain, we should not have suffered those Military Checks which have so frequently shaken our cause, nor should we have incurred such enormous expenditures as have destroyed our paper Currency and public credit.

A moderate compact force on a permanent establishment, capable of acquiring the discipline essential to military operation, would have been able to make head against the enemy, without comparison, better than the throngs of militia which at certain periods have been, not in the field, but on their way to and from the field. We have had a great proportion of the time two sets of men to feed and pay, one coming to the army and the other going from it.

The intervals between the dismission of one Army and the collection of another have more than once threatened us with ruin, which humanly speaking, nothing but the supineness or folly of the enemy could have saved us from. How did our cause totter at the close of '76, when with a little more than two thousand men we were driven before the enemy thro' Jersey and obliged to take post on the other side of the Delaware, to make a show of covering Philadelphia, while in reality nothing was more easy to them, with a little enterprise and industry, than to make their passage good to that city and dissipate the remaining forces which still kept alive our expiring opposition!

What hindered them from dispersing our little army and giving a fatal Blow to our Affairs during all the subsequent Winter? After having lost two battles and Philadelphia in the following campaign for want of those numbers and that degree of discipline which we might have acquired by a permanent force in the first instance, in what a cruel and perilous situation did we again find ourselves in the Winter of '77 at Valley Forge, within a day's march of the enemy, with little more than a third of their strength, unable to defend our position, or retreat from it, for want of the means of transportation?

What but the fluctuation of our Army enabled the enemy to detach so boldly to the Southward in '78 and '79, to take possession of two States, Georgia and South Carolina, while we were obliged here to be idle spectators of their weakness, set at defiance by a garrison of six thousand regular troops?

The loss of Canada to the Union and the loss of the brave Montgomery compelled to a rash attempt by the immediate prospect of being left without Troops, might be enumerated in the Catalogue of evils that have sprung from our lack of a force of trained soldiers.

If we meet with any severe blow the great exertions which the moment requires to stop the progress of the misfortune oblige us to run into any expense or to adopt any expedient however injurious to procure the force and means which the emergency demands.

Everything is thrown into confusion and the measures taken to remedy immediate evils perpetuate others. We find ourselves unprepared, without troops, without magazines, and with little time to provide them.

We have frequently heard the behavior of the militia extolled upon one and another occasion by men who judge only from the surface, by visionary men whose credibility easily swallowed every vague story in support of a favorite Hypothesis.

I solemnly declare I never was witness to a single instance that can countenance an opinion of Militia or raw troops being fit for the real business of fighting. I have found them useful as light parties to skirmish in the woods, but incapable of making or sustaining a serious attack. This firmness is only acquired by habit of discipline and service.

I mean not to detract from the merit of our Militia. Their zeal and spirit upon a variety of occasions have entitled them to the highest applause, but it is of the greatest importance we should learn to estimate them rightly. We may expect everything from ours that militia is capable of, but we must not expect from any, services for which regulars alone are fit. The late Battle of Camden is a melancholy comment upon this doctrine. The Militia fled at the first fire, and left the continental troops surrounded on every side, and overpowered by numbers to combat for safety instead of Victory.

Every motive which can arise from a consideration of our circumstances, either in a domestic or foreign point of view, calls upon us to abandon temporary expedients and substitute something durable, systematic and substantial. Our present system furnishes us in emergency a mob of men, but no army.

They lose their confidence in Government apace. The Army is not only dwindling into nothing, but the discontents of the Officers, as well as of the men, have matured to a degree that threatens but too general a renunciation of the service, at the end of the campaign.

These circumstances conspire to shew the necessity of immediately adopting a plan that will give more energy to Government, more vigor and more satisfaction to the Army. Without it we have everything to fear. I am persuaded of the sufficiency of our resources if properly directed.

The present crisis of our affairs appears to me so serious as to call upon me as a good citizen to offer my sentiments freely for the safety of the Republic. I hope the motive will excuse the liberty I have taken.

The Minstrel

By Jane McLean

THAT merry minstrel fickle Fate
Hath mem'ries for thee. Who will buy?
Here's one that costs a weary dream,
And this a pink rose blooming late.
Here is a memory tied with myrrh
That costs a tear, and here is one
Gold-fecked, bought with a single kiss.
Here's one that haply pain will stir,
That merry minstrel fickle Fate
Hath mem'ries for thee. Who will buy?
